Appointments Attacked As 'Political'

HARRISBURG (AP) -Senate Republicans charging Gov. Lawrence with making politically inspired appointments, moved Monday night to rip out the membership of the State Tax Equalization Board.

But after 90 minutes of debate they were forced by Democratic objections to put over the action until

Pope Attacks Limitation Of Offspring

VATICAN CITY (AP) - Pope john XXIII urged Monday that the world find ways to feed its hungry without resorting to artificial methods of birth control.

The Pope reaffirmed the Roman Catholic Church stand at a secret consistory where he formally announced the elevation of two new American cardinals, Albert Gregory Meyer of Chicago and Alois Tuench of Fargo, N.D., along with six from other countries.

His speech to the consistory, as distributed by the Vatican, made no mention of discussion in the United Sate over the possible use of foreign aid funds for birth control programs.

Feeding Hungry Instead he approached the question by referring to the problem of feeding the hungry. "For a great part of humanity the problem of hunger is still grave. In any case, to seek a remgrave. In any case, to seek a remedy to this very grave calamity Dies After there cannot be any adoption of erroneous doctrines and harmful methods and lethal limitation of offspring," he said.

Continuous Offerings

By William A. Doyle You have explained that a securities salesman must pass out a prospectus when he attempts to sell shares of a mutual fund. You said that, because most mutual funds continuously offer shares to the public, the continuous offering is considered a "new offering" and is registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission. You said that, under these circumstances, the potential buyer is supposed to receive a prospec-

You also said that a securities salesman can handle a buy or sell order on almost any other security without showing a prospectus.

Then why is it that companies whose stocks are listed on the American Stock Exchange continuously offer shares to the public? A securities salesman who solicits prospects for those shares doesn't have to show a prospectus. What's wrong here?

Loan Doubled To Attract New State Industries

HARRISBURG (AP)-The amount of money loaned by the Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority to attract new in dustry more than doubled this year over 1958.

The trend was seen as an auspicious indication of the success of the young agency in winning new industry for the Commonwealth's labor surplus areas.

In 1959 PIDA, slightly over three years old, made 33 loans totaling $4,943.797 on projects worth $16.613,662. Planned employment for the projects when completed is 8,898, and the estimated annual payroll is $44,199,500. By comparison, in 1958 PIDA made 25 loans totaling $1,872,443 on projects worth $5,273,790. The Named FFA's projects had a planned employ ment of 2,731 and an estimated annual payroll of $10,624,000.

Higher Priority Needed

Highway Secretary Park H. Martin met yesterday with the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission and a special Senate committee to determine ways of preventing future tieups on the cross-state toll road.

The committee was set up to deal specifically with problems of attempting to funnel traffic from the four-lane roadway of the turnpike to the two-lane tunnels through mountainous areas.

Long traffic jams have occurred at some of the tunnels during periods of heavy travel, and one senator has proposed that the commission build additional two-lane tunnels out of current turnpike reve-

All the fuss over serious jams at the tunnels is not news to supporters of the Keystone Shortway, the superhighway which will link Strondsburg on the east with Change in the western part of the

One of the many advantages of the Shortway route as already mapped out by state and independent engineers is that not a single tunnel is planned for the entire 291-mile distance across Pennsylvania.

Once the Shortway is completed, traffic will zip from one end of the state to the other without being forced to slow down to 30 or 35 miles an hour at a series of tunnels, as is the case on the turnpike. Nor will cars be tied up for distances as great as 10 miles, as they were over the Thanksgiving holidays because of the tunnels.

More significant from a security standpoint is the fact that the Shortway is designed as a major defense highway and will not be crippled as easily as one with tunnels, where one enemy bomb planted at any entranceway would knock the entire road out

Recent developments have demonstrated the turnpike's inability to handle exceptional traffic loads with ease. When projected in the light of certain traffic growth in the next decade. these factors point up the urgency for giving Shortway construction projects higher priority in state and federal planning.

The Highways Department says it expects to maintain its priority timetable for interstate road construction despite cutbacks in fedand funds for the meaning

It is encouraging to learn that the Shortway will not suffer from congressional action reducing federal support. What would be more pleasing - and more to the point-would be an announcement that the department is stepping up its priority schedule insofar as it affects the Shortway.

Literature And Less

The Federal Communications Commission has begun hearings on TV programming and some of the first witnesses complained that there was entirely to much violence shown, especially on programs that appeal to chil-

Well, there is no question that there is a great deal of violence and mayhem on TV and one reason that occurs right off is that the public likes it. People who don't, of course, can switch the channels or turn the thing off.

But the people who want violence curbed on TV suggest that the F.C.C. do something about it. Well, of a Government agency were empowered to curb violence, where would it begin? And where would it stop? The history of the world is full of violence, and so are children's fairy tales. Snow White has its poisoned apple, and Peter Pan its violent Captain Hook.

A man kills another man and marries his widow. This act leads to madness, a suicide, poisionings, a stabbing and all told seven persons die violent deaths.

If Hamlet were to be banned from the airwaves, a lot of violence would be ended, and the censors could next happily move against violence in the libraries and on the

SPEAKING of the men protecting our game, Spencer and his fellow aides had about the tougnest job anyone would want last Saturday.

Spencer, John Doebling and Harold Wiggins, of the local terrain, Ott Gdowsky of Luzerne County, and Jimmy Hazen another high official of the game field set up road blocks to catch would-be violators.

The day had plenty of rain and fog and was so bad in the Effort Mountain area that they had to vehicles for the protection and safety of the motorists on the highways.

Spencer noted through a haze that it would take a knife to cut through, "It isn't worth grabbing a few violators and possibly have someone injured or killed while in the process of examining a car or truck.'

Sound reasoning like the above goes with the job of protecting the state's game for which the men never receive enough credit for their unsung duties.

The women coming out of Woman's Club meeting yesterday afternoon seemed, oddly enough, rested. That's a peculiar word to use in conjunction with a woman's club meeting where the ebb and flow of conversation, of color and movement, is often as restless as the ocean.

Some programs are stimulating, provoking strong reactions, pro and con. Some are educational, some amusing, some challenging, and some, let's face it, are just plain dull. But even boredom demands something of the audience, if only rutching around.

But Philip Cartwright's reading of the Christmas Story from the Scripture and his songs didn't demand anything. In its familiarity - and in its differences - it somehow created a quiet eddy where each heart could be alone.

For an hour, there wasn't a stir or a smile or a whispered word as if each woman had day. withdrawn to some secret place of contemplation—shared Carolers To and yet solitary. It's a peculiar thing, but each one of them seemed to be more rested than they could possibly be anywhere else.

I notice that this year we even stock YELLOW trees, with white flocking and gold, and Walter tells me they are lovely when properly lighted, seeming almost to be gold plated. Christmas is many splendored . . and much more elaborate than when I was a child and fit your window. Then peel a tree just had to be green, an angel had to be garbed crayon stubs in different colors in white, and there was almost always a star at the very

> There were other faces too, of course, many of them new to me . . . and since I love meeting people, I was in my glory. The tables were as Christmasy as a carol, with huge red candles set amid greens in large brandy snifters, placed in the center of artificial holly sprays at either end of the table. The centerpiece was in the form of a long, narrow spray of brilliant ornaments, flanked by red candles held upright by crystal glasses inverted over the tiny figures of choir boys.

> And there were treasures at each place!—from Catherine Reimer, the president, lovely handmade books of original verse by Doris Garland with tiny shell flowers decorating the cover . . . and, from the special class of Ramsey School, taught by Miss Martin, adorable miniature Christmas scenes on silvered clam shells. Mine had a fawn against a background of pine, standing in red candle wax. There was a big tree too . . . and not far away my folding screen with its fifty or so Madonnas, spotlighted and glittering like so many

> I shall glitter too, throughout Christmas, WITH jewels, thanks to a perfectly stunning pin given me by the club. It is set with tiny rhinestones, and lustrous pear-shaped pearls. And what do you know!—it was MADE by one of them, Sybil Michener of Mountainhome, whose custom-made ornaments are glorious. Don't ever under-estimate the talents and skills to be found in our country. The Soroptomists are the living proof that Monroe countains are wonderful, wise and full of surprises!

Step up to Comfort-Plus with Electric HOME HEATING

When you buy or build a new home, make sure you get built-in cold weather comfort with electric home heating. It's the modern way to heat your home and it offers many "extra" conveniences.

For example, there's no central furnace! no fuel storage problems! This means more space for you in your basement or utility room. Electric home heating is clean, too . . . as clean as electric light to help keep your drapes and other furnishings brighter longer.

Best of all, electric heating lets you tailor the warmth in each room to suit your family's tastes or living habits. A thermostat in each room automatically keeps temperatures lower in little-used rooms and keeps you warm as toast in bath and living rooms.

You can choose from several types of electric heating systems. Heating cable in ceilings, electric wall panels or electric baseboard units provide resistance-type heating. There's little or no maintenance since there's practically nothing to wear out.

For top economy, it is most important that your new home is adequately insulated. A minimum of six inches of insulation is recommended in the ceilings, four inches in the walls and two inches in floors over unheated areas plus storm sash and doors.

For more information, contact your electric home heating equipment dealer, electrical contractor or your local PP&L

Cannon's Run Named Best Play Of Year

By HUGH FULLERTON JR. Associated Press Sports Writer

THE 1959 college football season had its full quota of spectacular feats and goal - line stands that make the game exciting. But two lingered longer than the rest in the memories of the men whose business is observing football — ports writers and broadcasters. They were All - America Billy Cannon's game-winning performance for Louisiana State against Mississippi and Dick Norman's long afternoon of passing for Stanford against California. One was single play that decided a very important game, the other a tremendous individual effort in a

In The Associated Press seasonend poll, Cannon won out 35-26 Norman as having contributed the season's top individual one - game performance. More than 160 writers and broadcasters participated in the voting.

The situation made Cannon's performance all the more spectacular. LSU, then No. 1 in the national rankings, was playing one of its strongest rivals and for more than half the game it appeared there would be an upset. Cannon, though he played a fine game all the way, couldn't get past the tough Old Miss defenders.

Then Cannon caught a Mississippi punt and the play developed. With some blocking aid but largely on his own ability, Billy streaked 89 yards for a touch-down and LSU won 7-3.

When Stanford faced California was obvious the battered Indians could count on only one weapon-the pass. And pass they did. Norman threw 39 and completed 34 for 401 yards, but still Stanford lost 20-17.

Third place went to Navy's Joe Bellino for his unstoppable performance against Army when he scored three touchdowns to lead the Midshipmen to victory. Iowa's Olen Treadway was mentioned six times for his passing against Wisconsin, when he set a Big Ten record with 26 of 42 completed
